Diversity, anti-bullying, self-awareness

Bring your experiences and knowledge of peace-making to the table, teach others what has worked for you and learn from others.

Why is CCP important?

We live in a world hungry for peace and reconciliation.

--- all of us are affected daily by the violence and injustice that plague our world.

The ways to create change are right in front of us. Caring, engaged people simply need to get together to create the strategies that will work on a local and national level.

CCP is active nonviolence for social change, a spiritually-grounded tool box of resources for times like these, for people like us!

An opportunity to renew, to re-center and re-connect to a supportive community, and to realize our own power for creating a culture of peace, locally, nationally and globally.

If this makes sense to you, and you want to practice peace-making skills and share your own, come to this workshop.
